About the Microchip:

- A microchip was injected under the skin between the shoulder blades. Avoid petting the animal in this area for several days to allow the area to heal.
- The microchip will remain where it was injected and there will be no scarring or impairment from the chip.
- The microchip is a permanent ID with a one-of-a-kind number. The ID cannot be lost, altered, or unintentionally removed.
- The microchip will last the animal's lifetime and can be registered online in the national database.
- The information to register the microchip is found online at www.PetLink.net. Use the promo-code ADOPTAPET to save on the registration's cost.
- If the animal finds a new family or the phone number or address changes, inform A.P.E. and the national database. This is important to ensure that if the animal gets lost, they will know how to get ahold of you!
